

Engagement (Worth 2%)

Classes are way more interesting (for you and for me!) when you truly engage with the material and engage in class - particularly as opposed to just passive consumption of lectures. Active engagement in learning is always important. And you learn more!

General points about in-class and discussion-board engagement

Do not underestimate your wisdom!

You have a unique perspective on life based on your background and your life experiences. That is valuable. Sharing your thoughts with us broadens all of experience and knowledge and it makes everyone else more comfortable to speak up.

At the same - the point of classes is to learn! No one knows everything, so ...

If you don't understand something, ASK!

I totally remember being in classes and at times thinking: "What???? Why does everyone else seem to be understanding this and I'm utterly confused?" Trust me, if it's not clear to you, it's not clear to others in the class either. Be a leader and ask your question in class—that gives everyone the opportunity to hear the answer and it models leadership and makes others more comfortable to ask questions!

See following pages for details of how your Engagement mark will be earned and grading criteria.

HOW ENGAGEMENT MARKS ARE EARNED AND GRADING CRITERIA

Each student will submit the Individual Engagement Assessment Form twice during the semester.

- Mid-way through the semester: Beginning of class of Class 15 on Tuesday October 24
- End of semester: End of last class, Class 26 on Thursday December 7

Honesty is expected when completing these assessments. This assessment form will also be completed by me (your professor). You will receive your final Engagement Mark at the end of semester. I am always open to discussions with students on marks and grades assigned.

INDIVIDUAL ENGAGEMENT ASSESSMENT FORM & GRADING CRITERIA

Using the scale below, please assess your typical level of engagement in this course for each of the criteria listed.
